SACRAMENTO - Assemblyman Cameron Smyth (R-Santa Clarita), in conjunction with the California Small Business Association, has named Valencia, Calif.-based Tensility International Corporation the Small Business of the Year for the 38th Assembly District.

"Small businesses drive the economic engine of California, and I always welcome the opportunity to recognize hardworking business owners," said Smyth. "In addition to their economic contributions to our community, the owners of Tensility have also shown a financial commitment to the Domestic Violence Center of Santa Clarita, a cause for which I share their passion."

Tensility is a locally owned custom cable assemblies company that sources, designs and provides cable assemblies for engineering or OEM applications. The company is committed to operating with honesty and integrity, and providing exceptional customer service. Tensility owners Luis Alcalá and Seana McKenzie are both very active in the community. Their commitment to corporate giving is demonstrated by the support they give to programs that combat domestic violence and generational poverty.

Luis and Seana received their award in Sacramento today at a luncheon sponsored by the California Small Business Association.

Assemblyman Cameron Smyth represents the 38th Assembly District, which includes the cities of Los Angeles, Santa Clarita, Simi Valley and Glendale.
